Giftedness Testing

Intelligence testing is primarily used to help parents obtain the most reliable measure in determining traditional giftedness, and provides information about your child's cognitive strengths and weaknesses.

ADHD Testing and Rehabilitation

Testing can answer questions you may have about your child's academic difficulties, behavior problems, emotional struggles, sensory issues, and/or intellectual development. Therapists can work with your child to develop strategies to increase adaptive skills to promote academic success.

Learning Disability Testing

Learning disabilities, or learning disorders, are an umbrella term for a wide variety of learning problems that effects how children receive and process information. Common types of learning disabilities involve problems with reading, writing, math, reasoning, listening, and speaking.

Other Developmental Disorders (Autism)

In order to determine whether your child has autism, a related autism spectrum disorder, or another developmental condition, clinicians look carefully at the way your child socializes, communicates, and behaves.

Personality and Behavior Testing

Personality assessments can help you gain insight to what is contributing to a child's thoughts, moods, and behaviors.

Therapy

Experienced clinicians provide therapy to individuals and families to help with developmental, psychological, substance abuse, and trauma related issues.
